

	MY Sort
Group 1	Biography, Goal
Group 2	Video, Similar Games, Resources
Group 3	New releases, coming soon, calendar
Group 4	Chat, comments, feedback, email signup
Group 5	Review, score, gaming news, top 's

	Outside person sort 1
Group 1	Score, Goal
Group 2	Bio, email signup
Group 3	Contact, chat, feedback, comments
Group 4	Similar games, top 10's
Group 5	Resources, review, video, news
Group 6	Coming soon, new release, calendar

	Persona Sort
Group 1	Video, comments, Score, review, similar games
Group 2	Contact, email signup
Group 3	Resources, goal, Biography
Group 4	Gaming news, coming soon, new release
Group 5	Chat, feedback
Group 6	Top 10's

	Outside person sort 2 (hybrid method)
Contact	Feedback, comments, email, chat
About	Bio, goal
Articles	Top 10's, similar games, news, review
Calendar	New release, coming soon
Other	Score, resources, video

Results Report

After the sorts I believe there are four main sections of the content which I used to do a partial closed sort as the forth sort. The four sections are Contact, About, Articles, and Calendar. The main content of the site will be the articles. There are different types of articles such as top 10's, reviews, gaming news, etc. In the last sort the person put score, resources, and video cards outside the four sections. They said they didn't think any of these are really fit into the categories as they were small parts that could fit into the other larger cards. Like articles can have videos and resources of where they got the info, and reviews would have a score.

Within the articles category there are some categories that can be focused on. News and reviews are the primary articles that could be put up most often with so many games being released and lots of video game news to talk about. The similar games could be part of reviews towards the end. And Top 10s are a small category that could be removed or part of a filler section to fill in any dry spells of game releases and news.

The contact section will also be a big part. This is where readers will be able to give feedback on the content. This is very useful because the articles are written for the reader so any suggestions are important. This is also where readers can discuss with each other. Hopefully the articles will fuel people to talk about the content amongst each other. I also plan to put a comment section on each article. This is so that people can connect what they write to a specific article. Either talking about it or simply stating their opinion.

My idea is that I could also create sections based on the console that the game is on. This way people could click on their wanted console and then they'd see the newest article that have to do with that console like newest game reviews or news about it.

The calendar will be a simple tool that allows people to see upcoming events. These events will be things like release dates of games. This could also contain larger video game events like pro gaming tournaments of conferences.

The about page will be for giving information on the site, me, and any other people that might write for it. This is where I will give my goal and purpose of the site and some background about me and the content writers.

